APPELLATION

It is no surprise fruit for the Folie à Deux 2018 Pinot Gris finds such beautiful expression in the cool region of Russian River Valley. The cooling fog from the Pacific Ocean is this AVA's key climactic feature—which reduces temperatures by 35–40 degrees at night—fostering a long, even growing season. The region's wide range of alluvial soils, composed primarily of gravel, loam and sand, provides essential water drainage while retaining sufficient moisture and nutrients to nurture the vines during the appellation's long growing season. The Folie à Deux 2018 Pinot Gris ripens slowly in this climate, developing concentrated varietal flavors while retaining vivacious acidity.

WINEMAKING

The fruit for this Pinot Gris is selected from the greatest vineyards in Russian River Valley. Once harvested, the juice is fermented and aged in stainless steel tanks at about 60 degrees Fahrenheit. The yeast used during fermentation are perfect fermenters for expressive, aromatic whites.

TASTING NOTES

The Folie à Deux 2018 Sonoma Coast Pinot Gris displays refreshing aromas of apricot, honeysuckle, fresh apple, orange blossom, marzipan, light lemon and a hint of guava. Ample fruit and citrus flavors surrender on the palate, followed by candied orange peel, peach nectar and a slight tropical note. Showcasing a medium to light body, this wine has bright acidity and finishes with a hint of sweetness. This food friendly Pinot Gris pairs well with cacio e pepe, lemon-pepper chicken or cajun-spiced bass.

"We admit it: we're in love with Sonoma County! Its incredible diversity makes it unique and provides us the rare opportunity to work with grapes from an amazing collection of superior appellations—from cool, coastal regions to warm, rugged mountain sites and everything in between. This broad array of distinctive growing conditions allows us to craft a portfolio of sustainable wines that captures the full range and beautifully expressive characteristics of Sonoma's world-class wine districts."
